

Build Your Recipe Collection, Effortlessly

Seamlessly import recipes from any website directly into Mise en Place. NY Times Cooking and Serious Eats are among the most popular recipe sites, and our extension works perfectly with both.

One-click import from any recipe website

Preview and Edit Before Saving

Advanced import sidebar with actual recipe loaded

Edit Before You Save

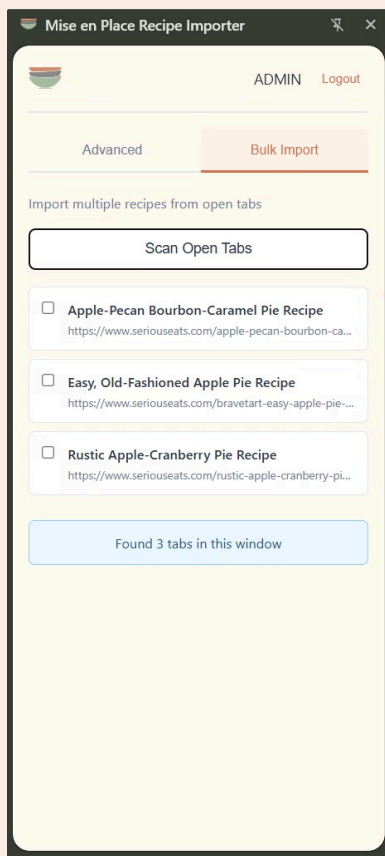

Review complete recipe details before importing

Edit ingredients, steps, and descriptions to your taste

Get exactly what you want in your collection

Advanced Import gives you full control over every recipe detail

Import Multiple Recipes at Once

Bulk import with checkboxes selected

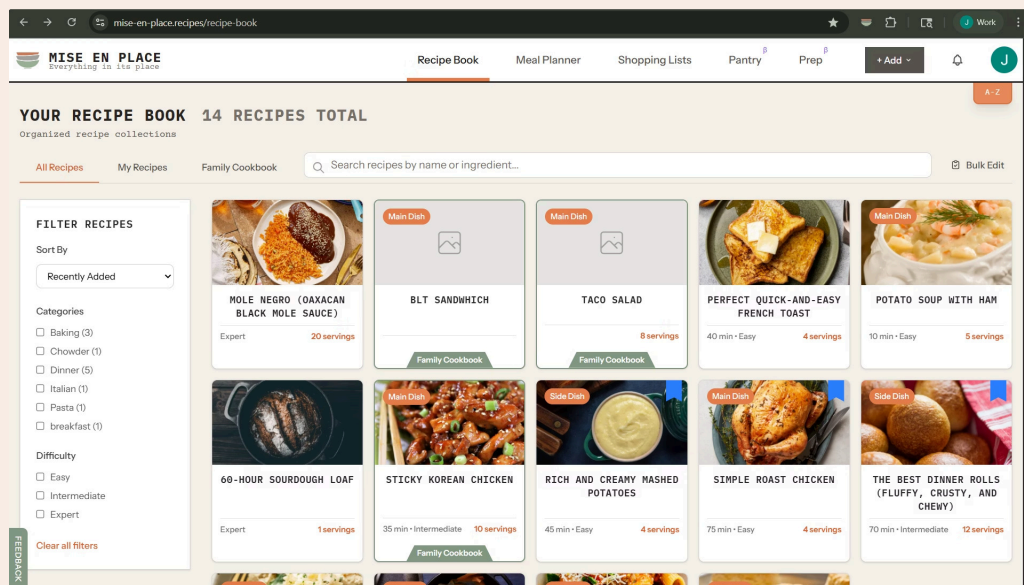

Bulk Import Power

Planning your weekly meals? Open multiple recipe tabs and import them all together.

- Select recipes with checkboxes
- Real-time progress tracking
- Perfect for meal planning sessions
- Import 5, 10, or 20 recipes in one go*

*Rate limits may apply based on your subscription plan.

Your Complete Recipe Collection

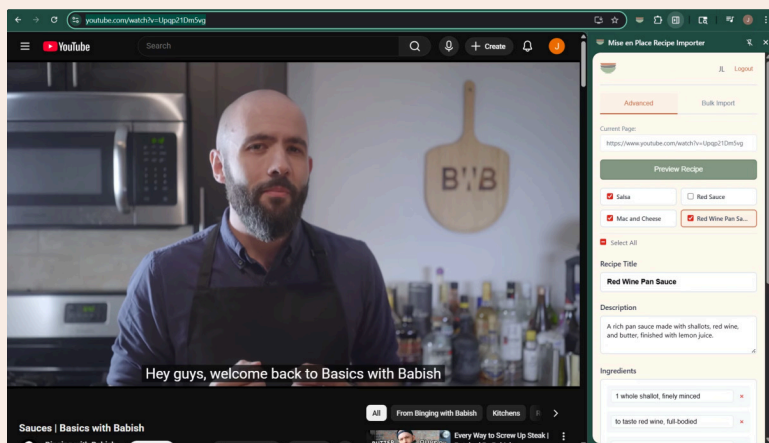

Recipes organized in your Mise en Place collection

From Import to Kitchen

See how your imported recipes seamlessly integrate into your organized recipe collection. Every recipe you save becomes part of your personal cooking library.

- Automatically organized and searchable
- Access from any device
- Perfect for meal planning
- Your recipes, your way

Works with YouTube Cooking Videos Too

Extension working on YouTube cooking channels

Beyond Recipe Websites

Extract recipes from YouTube cooking videos - including popular channels like Binging with Babish and Bon Appétit.

Most recipe importers can't handle video content. We parse video descriptions, ingredients lists, and even transcript data to give you structured, cookable recipes.

- Intelligent recipe extraction from videos
- Works with major cooking channels
- Multiple recipes per video separated automatically

*Channel names shown for compatibility reference only. Not affiliated with or endorsed by any creators.Learn More